Hello San Diego chapter members,

I hope you all experienced a joyous holiday season.

I find myself reflecting on the loss of our and So Cal's member Guido Dei. Guido was a great dog trainer and had an infectious personality. I think Guido had two maybe three dogs from his kennel that earned Versatile Champion titles, along with titles testing in the German system. He was one of the motivating members in the So Cal chapter. He will be sorely missed.

Well after taking November and December off we are back to training. I hope to see you all at our January 17th training day at Honey Springs. My dog Ace turns nine this month and I'm reflecting on the eleven years I have been a San Diego chapter member. I value all the support I received from chapter members in training my hunting dog. I've tried to return that help to the chapter by helping other members with their dogs. The chapter can always use help on training days from our experienced members, so if you are not hunting on the 17th, jump in the car and come give us a hand.

We had a great Holiday Party hosted by the Gilliland's. The food was outstanding and we had a great time swapping hunting stories.

See you on the 17th,

Jeff Derbes

Versatile Breed : German Longhaired Pointer

The German longhaired pointer was developed in Germany and is used as a multipurpose gundog. It has a strong and well-regarded club (first club established in 1893; all clubs consolidated in 1926) in its homeland, a growing population in North America and even a small but active following on the field trial circuit in the Netherlands, France, and Spain. The breed soon gained a reputation as a tough-as-nails “forester’s dog”, an excellent water worker, and a calm steady tracker of big game. Compared to its shorthaired and wirehaired cousins, the GLP was consider more of a niche breed like the Weimaraner, valued for its slower, steadier hunting style, strong protective instinct, and sharpness on predators.

The GLP should be muscular, elegant, and athletic. It should not be bulky or cumbersome, and it should move with great speed and freedom. It has moderate but substantial bone and must never look weak or frail. In terms of size, males should be 24-28in and females 23-26in and GLPs weigh in at approximately 60 pounds. The coat is of medium length and can be solid brown, liver roan, or brown and white in many combinations but never black. The coat is slightly wavy, but must not be curly. It is not silky or soft, but rather firm and shiny. The GLP always has a double coat with the undercoat being quite dense.
